THE HILLIER VIEW

Kevin Hillier wants the council to live by the letter

This week's column is brought to you by the letter R. Many believe local government should concentrate on the 3 Rs and leave the rest to those above them in the political totem pole, but for a variety of reasons those days are long gone. The three Rs in question are roads, rubbish and rates, the traditional domain of councils and rightly so, though the roads get murky when local roads become state roads and the funding and maintenance is the higher authority's responsibility.

That letter R (responsibility) gets thrown around a lot in government circles but is usually preceded with the words 'not our' or 'that's their'. Roads are still a major issue and big bucks are involved, with $37.1 million budgeted for in the next year by council, who are quick to alert everyone to the difference between the roads the state pays for and the ones they do. Here's a new R to cover that - rats. As in, We the Ratepayers (the most important R) don't give a rat's who claims to pay for it because we do anyway. Just get it done.

I am pleased to see rubbish is still high on the agenda, actually most things to do with rubbish are high. The hill ours sits on in Werribee is very high, as is the pungent odour, if the wind is high to very high. The cost of travelling overseas to see what to do with our rubbish is also very high, as is the number of people it takes to visit these overseas places on fact-finding missions. The level of interest and action after these trips is generally not as high as the UV reading in the European cities these events are held in. I personally can't wait for the report on the three week visit which can then be recycled so the circle of rubbish can roll on.

Another R that is rearing its head more often is rorts. This has been more prevalent at state level, where those not implicated are saying it is not because they did not want to be, it's just that they weren't asked. Really? If that is how you really feel, here are another two R words - resign or retire, or as we like to say in the west - rack off.

Here is a Reality Report for all those in any elected office - get off your Rs and work for the people who voted you in. ■
